MINERS' STRIKE IS LIKELY TOMORROW; TERMS ARE REJECTED

John L. Lewis Says Operators Have Until Midnight To Ratify Agreement

AN UNUSUAL SITUATION

Operators Given Permission
To Keep "Maintenance Men" At the Mines

NEW YORK, Apr. 1—(INS)—Complete stoppage tomorrow in the nation's bituminous industry loomed today following operators' rejection of a tentative contract drafted by a joint subcommittee of the United Mine Workers of America and Eastern mine owners.

Operators, according to Union President John L. Lewis, have been given until midnight tonight to ratify the agreement.

When a session of the joint negotiation committee broke up, Lewis flatly refused to consider an extension of the present contract.

"There is no need for further negotiations," he said. "We have negotiated an agreement. There is nothing more to negotiate."

If no agreement is reached by the operators today, there will be stoppage in virtually the entire industry tomorrow, Lewis declared.

"This is a very unusual situation," he commented. "There has never been an occasion where the operators have rejected the report of their own subcommittee."

Indicating that they were none too sure of an agreement today, operators sought and won the permission of the Union conferees to authorize "maintenance men." They are to keep mines from flooding during the suspension period.

According to Lewis, an agreement was first reached by the subcommittee in the office of Charles P. O'Neill, one of the operator conferees, and referred to the joint negotiating committee of sixteen. The miners, he said, approved the draft, but operators could not concur.

Unanimous consent is required, and it was learned that three of the eight operator conferees registered strenuous objections to the proposed contract.

According to reliable sources, the tentative contract provided for:

Fifty cents a day wage increase to day workers.

Seventy cents to mechanical workers.

Nine cents per ton increase in piece work rates (eight cents to loaders, and one cent to cutters).

Time and a half for all time over 35 hours weekly.

Double time for Sundays.

A gentleman's agreement permitting, after 30 days following ratification, the summoning of a joint convention to revise the proposed contract if an increase in the cost of living should warrant it.

Operators, it was reported, agreed to the wage increases but balked at the provisions for overtime pay and the gentlemen's agreement.

The snag developed shortly after the committee of sixteen convened. When it reconvened after a recess, Edward F. McGrady, the Department of Labor "trouble shooter," was called in.

"Green Light" Is Fine Romantic Film Drama

A best-seller for two years, Lloyd C. Douglas' novel, "Green Light," has been translated to the screen, retaining all of its original strength and beauty and brought to life by a more than competent cast, in the Cosmopolitan production, "Green Light," which shows Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre as a First National release.

Errol Flynn adds stature to his dramatic reputation with his handling of the role of Newell Paige, the young surgeon, who sacrifices his own professional integrity to cover the mistake of an older doctor. In shouldering the blame he incurs the hatred of Phyllis Dexter (played by the lovely Anita Louise) whose mother's death was caused by the fatal mistake.

To justify his life, and to prove to Phyllis, whom he loves, that he is trying to make up for the tragic mistake she believes he has made, he goes to an obscure laboratory in the Rocky Mountains and risks his life trying to discover a vaccine that will prevent the dread spotted fever.

HATCHERIES, DELAWARE VALLEY, SEE BIG SEASON

Operators Expect To Care For 5,000,000 Chicks This Spring

"BLOOD TEST" THE HENS

Delaware Valley chicken hatcheries look forward to a banner season, in fact the largest season in years. The hatchery operators expect to care for 5,000,000 chicks which will be hatched this season, in modern incubators.

"Chicktown" is the name given to the section of the Delaware Valley embracing territory around Frenchtown, N. J., where many hatcheries of Hunterdon County are located.

There are 100 employees kept busy, the majority for the entire year, while only a few of this number are part-time workers.

The big job is preparing for the Spring months of intensive hatching. Poultrymen along the Delaware Valley have developed large farms with tidy "hen hotels," where these men spend the greater part of each year seeking special qualities in the breeding flocks which produce the eggs for the next season's hatch.

Breeders are nest-trapped for the purpose of determining the heavy producers. Hens with good egg production records are culled from the flocks to supply the eggs for the coming season.

In addition to this, the eggs are "X-rayed" by candling and weighed to develop a strain of hens which will lay perfect eggs. Every hen, before she is accepted as the producer of the required type of eggs, must pass a rigid physical examination. Samples of blood are taken from each bird and if a test shows her condition is imperfect, she is discarded even though she may be a heavy producer.

The Kerr Chickeries, the largest hatchery in the East's chick producing center, are preparing for the busiest season since they were incorporated in 1929. This firm expects to produce about three million chicks this season. Incubators with a total capacity of 1,100,000 eggs are turning out hundreds of chicks each day to be sent all over the country.

During recent years this firm has employed men who specialize in what is known as the sex separation of the chicks when they are only a few hours old. This firm, however, sex-separates only the White Leghorns.

This firm maintains a 240-acre breeding farm on the Everettstown Road, and here experts in mating, culling and blood testing are given every facility which will help them to produce better breeders. All breeding flocks are under the supervision of A. C. Schlott, breeding farm manager, who is assisted by a staff of field specialists.

About 50 people are on the payroll of this firm and about 30 of these people are employed in the hatchery. About 20 additional people are employed in the 16 branch offices of the firm.

W. F. Hillpot is another heavy producer. He has about 15 men at work who this season will turn out about 500,000 chicks. Mr. Hillpot's breeding farm is located on the Baptiststown road and here are to be found almost two miles of colony houses, shelters for time-tested breeders. Field experts care for flocks housed in clean "hen hotels" throughout the year.

Treiber's poultry farm, located opposite the Kerr establishment, plans to hatch 100,000 chickens this season. Incubators with a capacity of 35,000 eggs started operation recently. New brooder houses will be erected to take care of this year's flock. For eight years this firm has been hatching chicks on the Frenchtown farm and previous to that the center of activity was at Upper Black Eddy. Max Treiber, owner and manager of this hatchery, stated that about 98 per cent of his chicks are sold locally within a radius of about 40 miles.

BACKERS OF BABY CANDIDATES PUT FORTH BEST EFFORTS TO OBTAIN THE SPECIAL ADDED PRIZE OF $25 CASH

FRIENDLY CANDIDATE

With but two days remaining in which to gather votes to apply on the special added $25 cash prize being offered by The Courier in connection with its Favorite Baby Election, parents and other backers of the scores of little candidates are putting forth every effort to obtain merchant coupons and subscription votes.

There are TWENTY other prizes offered, in addition to the huge silver loving cup and the title of "COMMUNITY'S FAVORITE BABY"—all to be awarded community babies at the close of the famous election, April 24th. In little more than one week votes will take their first decrease in values; as has been repeatedly published in these columns, votes will earn less after April 10, and still less one week later; at no time will votes count as much as they do right now, the management of the campaign announces.

If you would learn from a seasoned campaigner and seek new points on how to get votes for YOUR baby in the favorite baby "Shower of Cash" election that is gripping this community like nothing else has in its history, read how 20,000 votes were obtained for one of the little candidates just yesterday.

A mother who is convinced that her little daughter less than two years old, is the outstanding claimant to the title of the community's finest and fairest, found that her darling was falling behind in the vote standings.

It didn't take her long to know what to do and after she admitted (to herself) that she had allowed much precious time to pass without making a really fine effort to see her daughter head the list and continue in the lead to the close.

After the morning's work was done, she visited some of her nearest neighbors. She found that many had been buying at the "baby stores" and not asking for their vote coupons to which they were entitled. She changed that with a little explanation of how sincerely she wanted her child to win, and immediately obtained results.

Next she went to one of the community's leading stores and made several purchases of things she needed for the home, things which might have been put off several weeks but which now meant much to her. More votes was the result, for she asked for them.

When she had finished the noon meal she went to the telephone and called several of her intimate friends. Among them she found many who were like the women she had talked to during the morning—and they promised to do some shopping at home where the money means so much if it is kept in circulation.

It's Up To You

It's up to you this week whether YOUR baby stays in the running for the crown as the community's fairest and finest, goes into one of the leading positions or unhappily drops behind the leaders.

GEDEON UNSHAKEN IN HIS STORY TO DETECTIVES

Eccentric Upholsterer Taken To View Dead Wife And Daughter Early Today

STORY NOT BELIEVED

By International News Service
NEW YORK, Apr. 1—Unshaken in his story after 22 hours of continual grilling, Joseph Gedeon, eccentric upholsterer, was today led uptown by detectives to view the bodies of his slain wife and daughter Veronica, beautiful art model.

The two women, who with Frank Byrnes, a boarder, were the victims of the Easter Sunday triple murder of Beekman Hills, lay in a West Side undertaking establishment from where funeral services were to be conducted later today.

Gedeon's story on his movements Saturday evening, the night of the murders, has failed in corroboration, police said. Gedeon had claimed he spent from eight p. m., Saturday, until 2:55 a. m., Sunday, in a bar and grille, playing skee ball.

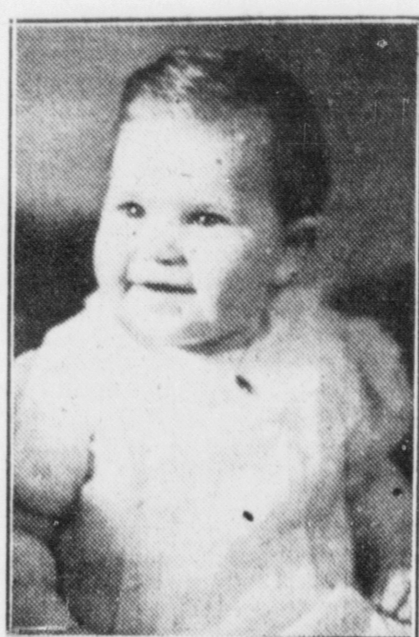

The death of Mrs. Gedeon and Byrnes, police are now certain, took place at 11:09 p. m., Saturday. Now they say they are unsatisfied as to Gedeon's movements between nine o'clock and midnight that night.

SPRING DANCE

The annual Spring dance of Bristol high school will be conducted in the high school auditorium tomorrow evening, starting at 8:30 o'clock. Bob Boutlier's Kenmore Orchestra will play for the dancers. Proceeds will be for benefit of the athletic society of the high school.

ASKED TO ATTEND MEETING

Bristol Council No. 58, Daughters of America, will hold initiation tomorrow night and all members who intend to stay on degree team are asked to be present.

BEVERLY ANN BINTLIFF
Bristol

She's only 11 months of age, but we ask you to take a second look at this bit of feminine joy, and then cease to wonder why she is getting votes by the thousands. Beverly Ann, the very heady daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bintliff, 1909 Wilson avenue, Bristol, makes friends very easily, and readily goes to anyone who holds out their arms; everyone who knows this dear little child loves her, and she is blessed with Mr. and Mrs. William Woodward, of Morrisville, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. George Bintliff, of Edgely, for grandparents, and still further blessed by having a great-grandmother living, Mrs. Ann Phillips, of Reading. Beverly Ann has blue eyes and light brown hair, and is in the midst of her campaign to show her many relatives and friends she can win.

Until Saturday, April 10th, every vote obtained counts FOUR in the final standing. Ballots must be in the Ballot Box, at Election Headquarters, 218 Mill street, for tabulation by Saturday night, April 10th. Ask your merchants for the votes coming with your purchases. The votes are yours but it will require your efforts to get them.

We know you'll not quit with the goal in sight. It's up to you!

Elections are the most interesting things in the world if every candidate is active and everyone is working for his or her favorite. Any letdown, even for 24 hours, may prove to be the difference between a winner and a runner-up or, carried further down the line, to an "also ran."

We of the "Shower of Cash" election know of no babies entered who deserve to be in the latter classification. Your baby can be a prospective winner if the family and friends will keep wee bit of effort to put their choice over the winning line "out front."

ISSUE SUMMONS FOR THREE MERCHANTS FOR VIOLATION OF CIRCULAR DISTRIBUTION LAW; HOUSEWIVES MAKE VIGOROUS COMPLAINT

Incensed at the promiscuous distribution of circulars and other advertising matter which every week-end litters their porches, lawns and premises, a number of housewives of Bristol have entered vigorous protests to the police department. As a result of this complaint three merchants have been summoned to appear for their violation of the ordinance regulating the distribution of such advertising matter.

The circular nuisance has long been a thorn in the side of those who are civic minded enough to desire a neat and tidy town. The circulars are thrown into yards, hastily stuck into doorknobs and behind porch rails, only to be tossed about by the winds. These circulars stick in the hedges, litter lawns and give to the entire

ADDRESSES WOMEN ON SUBJECT OF BIRTH CONTROL

Margaret Sanger, New York
City, Speaker at Women's Meeting in Hatboro

BIG CROWD ATTENDS

HATBORO, April 1—"In a modern Democracy the vote of the moron is just as good as that of a college professor," declared the internationally famous Margaret Sanger, of New York City, leader in the birth control movement throughout the United States, in an address before an overflow audience at a meeting sponsored by the Hatboro Neighbors here yesterday.

The famous birth control crusader who the world-famous Pearl S. Buck recently called "America's most important woman," addressed more than 500 women from Montgomery, Bucks and other nearby counties.

The Baptist Church Sunday School room here was far too small to hold the entire crowd so at least 200 women waited for an hour in another room and outside the meeting place for the guest speaker to give her talk the second time.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. David N. Fell, Jr., of Spring Valley, chairman of the Birth Control Research Bureau of Bucks county. Mrs. Fell was introduced by Mrs. Charles Harper Smith, president of the Hatboro Neighbors and by Mrs. Francis M. Garver, chairman of the literature committee of the Neighbors, sponsors of the meeting.

Women came from as far away as Trenton to hear the noted speaker. Practically every woman's club in Bucks and Montgomery counties was represented.

Mrs. Sanger, in her opening remarks declared that the suggestion of a birth control meeting usually arouses curiosity but that is not minded in the least by those who sponsor the affair. She also paid a fine tribute to the work of the Doylestown Birth Control Clinic and before the meeting adjourned, another speaker, a Philadelphia physician in charge of the birth control work in that city, said that Doylestown was far in advance of any town in the entire country in its advance strides in birth control work.

Mrs. Sanger, who was indicted in 1915 for sending birth control pleas through the mails and who was freed of the indictment through the efforts of the President of the United States, said that she was very glad to announce that after a long and bitter fight, birth control is now legal as practiced in clinics, in hospitals and through the advice of physicians.

"It has been a long fight against misunderstanding and even bigotry," Mrs. Sanger declared. "The hour for birth control has struck. No subject has so deep a foundation. There is no other subject of equal importance that has been kept so far in the background as birth control."

Automobiles Were Broken

Stolen On Tuesday Night

WINDOWS WERE FORCED

A raid was made Tuesday night on a number of automobiles which were parked along the streets. The cars were broken into and numerous articles stolen. Police are of the opinion that the thefts were committed by the same lone bandit who attempted to hold up and rob William Murray at the Wright Service Station, Bath and Otter streets, early yesterday morning. Cars on Radcliffe street, Buckley street, Wood street and Jefferson avenue, were broken into and some of the contents stolen. Among the loot taken was a hammer, flash lights, two revolvers, brief cases, radio and numerous other articles.

In several instances air was let out of the tires. Where the cars were found locked, the windows were forced and the contents of the cars scattered about as if a hasty search of the machine was made by the burglar.

Police have learned that the automobile used by the lone bandit who yesterday morning at 5:20 attempted to hold up an drob William Murray, was stolen from a public garage in Philadelphia.

The car was found abandoned at Frankford by the Philadelphia police.

FALLS TWP VOTERS TO PASS ON ISSUING $40,000 SCHOOL BOND

Special Election Is To Be Held On Tuesday,
April 20th

PLAN A NEW BUILDING

If Issue Is Approved, P. W. A.
Grant To Be Applied For,
It Is Said

FALLSINGTON, Apr. 1—Voters of Falls Township are to be asked to vote on April 20th upon increasing the bonded indebtedness of the school district in the amount of $40,000. The money provided by the proposed bond issue is to be used along with anticipated PWA funds for the construction of a new building and equipping the same as a combination gymnasium-auditorium and four class rooms. The present school indebtedness is approximately $29,000.

The school board has approved the proposed bond issue and voted to submit it to the electors of the district at a special election.

The present school building, it is said, is not adequate for the demands. The schools of the district have been consolidated into the one building and the population of the district has increased.

It is stated that if the bond issue is approved, then it is likely that a PWA grant of 45 per cent of the funds needed for the improvements will be approved. It is estimated that the new building, alterations and equipment will cost approximately $65,000 to $70,000.

If the bond issue is not approved, of course the PWA grant will not be allocated and it is not likely that the PWA grant will be applied for unless the bond issue is approved, as it is the intent of the school board not to proceed with the work unless PWA funds are made available.

PRESSURE FROM PAP BOYS

In making his appeals for popular support of his position on the Supreme Court question, President Roosevelt follows a course few Presidents have pursued. It is the President's function to make recommendations to Congress. How far he should go in endeavoring to influence the votes of senators and representatives has long been a disputed question.

Mostly, as mere strategy in gaining the maximum of congressional support, pleas direct to the people are avoided, because of the resentments caused in Congress. It is one of the forms of bringing pressure to bear, affecting votes.

The hot participations for the President's side of the heads of large Government services are in another category—WPA Administrator Hopkins, Attorney General Cummings, Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Postmaster-General Farley. The effect is to urge the relief organization and its several million beneficiaries, and the personnel of three Federal departments, to get busy in any way they can think of to whip Congress into line.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Mo.) calls up a probably applicable prohibition in the Criminal Code against use by Government officials or employees of any part of their congressional appropriations for personal activities "to influence a member of Congress to favor or oppose legislation or appropriations." The law was passed in 1919 and struck at lobbying by organizations of Government employees to get pay increases.

We believe the people do not like, in course of this test of their opinion, resorts to confusing, extreme or dubious methods. Overdone or questionable propaganda ill befits discussion of the grave Supreme Court issue.

AN OLD FRENCH CUSTOM

The French have a habit of getting themselves worked up apparently to the verge of civil war and then cheerily bouncing back to business as usual. The Clichy riots and the Paris general strike, in which 2,000,000 participated, apparently provided the jumping-off place for some very ugly civil strife. Bloodshed on a major scale seemed just around the corner. The half-day general strike seemed merely a preliminary to nationwide paralysis of industry. The Blum government seemed to be tottering.

But the rioters stopped rioting; the 2,000,000 general strikers went back to work after their half-day gesture of protest, and the Blum government, not tottering at all, stepped briskly off on the daily task of government.

France is not immune to civil war. History proves quite the contrary. Some day it may happen again—but not while the French people retain the faculty of putting common sense to work in the nick of time.

Dora missed out completely on the President's last court broadcast. She was caught in a place with a radio but no fireside.

When he hears that salt herring appeared three times running in the President's lunch, a local critic decided the court plan must have been something like ate.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly
(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—The vogue for slacks and culottes has brought in such a splendid array of blouses and sweaters that a need for odd skirts has developed. Quick to take advantage of such a practical need, fashion designers are bending over their drawing boards figuring out attractive skirts that match nothing in the world but which can be worn for sports, street or office.

The butterfly skirt is one that has come back to life and is most prominent in wool crepes, both in gay plaids and such monotonous as peacock blue, sea green and thistle.

The finely pleated skirts are a natural outcome of the peasant mode. We did one in navy silk crepe for little Mary Maguire to wear in "One Hour of Romance." Short and minutely pleated, it is different in that rows of horizontal stitching hold the pleats in place as far as six inches down from the waistband. We have seen other skirts done like this with each pleat stitched vertically down from the waist for about six inches.

These pleated skirts which resemble those worn by the pre-war peasants of Europe join up ideally with basque blouses of paisley design or tuck-ins ornate with Russian embroidery which are girded at the waist with wide belts of the same solid embroidery motif.

Swing skirts are also much in evidence and in many cases are faced in contrasting materials.

The very slim silhouette is not neglected. However they have their own little trick of attraction, such as the one we did for Jane Wyman to wear in "The Singing Marine." This skirt, of heavy black silk crepe, is short and fitted, with a deep slash over one knee revealing a brightly printed slip beneath. The blouse is of the same material as the slip and can be worn either with or without a short black crepe bolero.

Some skirts are made with all-around narrow box pleats emerging directly from the waistline. Since this style has a tendency to make the hips look larger it probably will never become generally popular except among a few slim girls like Marie Wilson who never have a worry about extra poundage. However, for girls who can take it, the style is neat.

BUILDING BOOM IN TOKYO

TOKYO—(INS)—Despite the acute shortage of iron and steel, Tokyo is in the midst of a building boom. About 120 ferro-concrete structures are under construction. Most of the buildings are for offices, factories and warehouses, but banks, hotels and schools are also prominent. The cost of the 40 leading projects is estimated at $5,000,000. Within the limits of Greater Tokyo there are 61 new industrial plants either under construction or awaiting permits. Fourteen new schools are being built.

ALBERT BROWN

"Rich Cargoes" by Henry C. Rowland

SYNOPSIS

Enroute from Yokohama to San Francisco, Sandy Crewe, young scientist who recently amassed a fortune from the discovery of a silk-stocking press, meets elderly Colonel Carlton, eccentric. The Colonel plans to retire to his island in the Bahamas. Due to stress of business, Sandy declines the Colonel's invitation to visit the Carlton home and thereby offends the old man.

CHAPTER II

Some days later when the steamer was warping into her berth in San Francisco, Sandy realized the enormity of his offense. He was looking for Colonel Carlton to say good-bye when a cabin steward came up to him.

"Colonel Carlton's compliments, Mr. Crewe, and he asks if you will kindly come to his rooms."

Despite their friendly acquaintanceship aboard, this was the first time that Sandy had been asked to the Colonel's quarters, which happened to be a suite. The imposing old gentleman had in fact throughout the voyage held himself as much aloof as royalty traveling en mufti, even with the ship's officers who were puzzled about him. He replied courteously to polite advances but did not encourage them. He had himself been the first to open the conversations that had followed subsequently between Sandy and himself, their chairs being side by side and Colonel Carlton interested in a new book the pages of which Sandy was cutting: Ouspensky's Tertium Organum which the Colonel had read and desired to discuss. But their talks had always been impersonal on the part of Colonel Carlton so far as concerned his own private life and social conditions. Sandy did not even know the Colonel's nationality, though he took for granted he was English, because of an Anglican accent not strongly pronounced.

Entering the old gentleman's quarters now he found him glancing through some papers while a steward finished the packing of his personal things. The Colonel glanced at Sandy with a pleasant nod and said: "Here's a book I wish to give you, Crewe. You tell me that some day when you find time from your money making you intend to attempt a contribution on a better comprehension of the Fourth Dimension. This translation from the Sanskrit might help. Look through it at your leisure, on the train."

Sandy murmured his appreciation. But his eyes did not linger on the vellum bound volume. They had discovered something far more alive, a large photographic portrait of what announced itself to him immediately as the loveliest face that he had ever seen, and the most fascinating. It was one of a half dozen poses, the others evidently beneath and lying on a chair waiting to be packed last in a steamer trunk.

"May I look at this breath-taking portrait, Colonel?" Sandy asked, "or are you orientalized to the degree of making that bad form on my part?"

"Ah, my boy," murmured the Colonel, sadly, "look as longingly as you like at the portrait, for that's all the good it's apt to do you since you saw it. Such a bid, like a threat, is something I never issue a second time. That young lady is my grand niece Isobel, henceforth our chateleine at Carlton Close."

Sandy's eyes burned into the portrait. He raised it to look at the next beneath, a profile, the next, a quarter face, a full length in evening dress, each as it seemed to him more alluring if possible than its predecessor: "Give me another chance, Colonel," he begged.

Colonel Carlton shook his head. "To quote your own none too gracious fashion of declining when I asked you:—Sorry, but it can't be done. I'm a bit sensitive about some things, and one of them is the way in which my invitation to become a guest at our home happens to be received."

"But I say... Colonel..." Sandy, completely engloomed, continued to study the demoralizing beauty of the portraits. "...how was I to know that any such girl and her being in this bob-headed bol-

"You must live in a constant mess," Sandy said.

"Isobel is not long out of a French convent school. She respects my wishes. Incidentally she is my heiress with no fortune of her own, so that if I disowned her she would have to marry me, and there's nothing she'd hate as much as that."

"As soon as I can get my looms started," Sandy said, "I'm going to buy a yacht and sail for the Bahamas. Would you forbid my landing, Colonel?"

"No, nor your paying a formal call. I shall return it, and that would be the end. I'm not angry with you, Crewe, nor hurt in my pride. It's merely that I shall not make an exception to my established precedent."

"Is there no way of getting back

tailed world? Business or no business, Bahamas or Borneo, I'd drop everything and go..."

"You can drop those photographs onto the top of those evening shirts and go to blazes, sir," said the Colonel, calmly. "If I, Carlton Pasha... my military title happens to be an Ottoman Turkish one for service rendered the Sultan Abd Ul Hamid in the Balkan War... am not adequate attraction in myself, then you may visualize those portraits and languish like a sick camel, for all I care. But re-invent you I shall not."

"I believe," Sandy said, "you sent for me not to give me this book but out of a spirit of revenge. Offended pride at my l'espece?"

"Call it what you like, the fact remains that you have missed your bus, my boy. From the way you've splashed, I'm glad you turned me down. Nothing litters up a place like loveliness."

where I was before I played the ill bred brood, Colonel? What would be the technique of reparation if for instance I had been guilty of the same offence to, let us say, the Sultan of Johore, or the Maharajah of Odeypore?"

The Colonel's steely eyes twinkled. "You might manage to square yourself, but it would cost you a rich cargo. But if your motive were the same as now, and it were known, an attempt to crash the palace gates would be more apt to cost you your head."

"Well," Sandy said philosophically, "my head's no good to me without my heart, and that's walked out on me. I'll have to think this over. Good bye and God bless you, Colonel... and thanks for the bloomin' book..."

E. Hampton, Pittstown, expects to produce about 65,000 chicks this season. The Sayre hatchery located near Estown at present is turning out approximately 10,000 chicks per week by the close of the season will produce approximately 100,000. Production at this establishment has been in existence for about 15 years, was started in January and will be brought to a close in May. Electric incubators with capacities between 13,000 and 15,000 eggs are used here and after the chicks are hatched they are placed in self-starting battery brooder houses until they are ready for delivery. Most of the chicks produced at the Sayre hatchery are sold locally. This hatchery maintains about 2500 hens for breeding purposes, but owing to the fact that more eggs are needed during the height of the season, additional eggs are purchased from nearby poultrymen.

U. S. Senator Hitchcock says: "Luckies please both my taste and my throat"

"For close to fifty years I have been a regular smoker, so I think I know what constitutes a good cigarette. Luckies please me on two scores. I like their fine flavor. But even more important is the fact that they are a light smoke, easy on my throat. At any rate, it's results that count, and a light smoke pleases both my taste and my throat."

Herbert E. Hitchcock

HON. HERBERT E. HITCHCOCK

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Senator Hitchcock's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

FRENCH TOAST SANDWICH NOVELTIES HIT THE SPOT
French toast sandwiches are a modern solution of the ever-present "What shall I serve?" problem.

The possibilities are almost unlimited in this attractive sandwich, which fits into breakfast, luncheon or supper menus, as well as the afternoon or evening snacks.

The ingredients necessary for these sandwiches are such old standbys that your pantry shelves undoubtedly hold them ready before you ever check this recipe. The flavor and the type of topping may be varied by the use of fruit preserves, jams and jellies.

Prepare sandwiches in usual manner and trim off crusts. Fasten each corner in place with half a toothpick.

The filling chosen should be as free of moisture as possible. Cheese spreads, or prepared meat and sandwich spreads of any kind are well suited to this purpose.

Dip each sandwich in a mixture of beaten egg and milk, or a thin fritter batter, and fry in deep fat, 4 inches deep being sufficient. Drain on absorbent paper. To be truly delicious, such sandwiches should be served piping hot, topped with fruit preserves or jam, such as strawberry, raspberry, peach or loganberry.

Cheese sandwiches are tasty fried in butter, without dipping in the batter. The jam spreads also combine well with cream or cottage cheese in making combination sandwiches, using alternate slice of brown and white bread. One hostess cuts her rounds of bread, so that they graduate in size from about one to four inches in diameter. Allow five or six rounds for each sandwich, placing in tower sections, alternating both fillings and brown and white bread. Top each sandwich tower with a cherry and serve with coffee, stuffed celery and olives.

verse, but when the staid British Medical Journal defies tradition to rhyme about nutrition, it is high time for the food editor to take notice.

How about clipping this rhymed advice from E. P. Cathcart, professor of physiology at the University of Glasgow.

"All you need to know about digestion, in five lines," is the heading on this verse, printed in a recent issue of the Journal:

"Eat all kind nature doth bestow; It will amalgamate below.

If the mind says so, it shall be so. But, if you once begin to doubt, The gastric juice will find it out."

Cheese Dressing

This delicious dressing can be made well in advance of the meal. Chill thoroughly and serve on crisp lettuce hearts, or on aspic salad.

Two cream cheeses, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon mayonnaise, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, or finely-chopped stuffed olives.

JOE DUSEK HOLDS OLSON TO MAT DRAW

TRENTON, Apr. 1.—Two Western bad men, Cliff Olson, madcap Swede from Minnesota, and Joe Dusek, youngest of the Omaha riot squad, battled to a 90-minute draw on Promoter Johnny Ipp's weekly mat show at the Arena last night.

The bout terminated with both wrestlers mauling one another in the center of the ring, apparently out on their feet from the grueling brawl.

Dusek gained the first fall with a body press after 43 minutes had elapsed. Up to this time, both had been sharing considerable punishment without a whimper. Dusek, a pet hatred of local fans, gained the wrath of the gallery from the start. Joe appeared in the ring with a bandaged left knee and it was not long before he was massaging Olson's eyes with the rough surface. Cliff protested to the referee, but Dusek claimed that the knee was injured and required a bandage, and after repeated warnings agreed to desist from this means of torture rather than have the elastic removed.

Olson used a series of flying mares to weaken Dusek after the intermission and finally capitalized upon the flying mare to gain the second fall. He had Dusek wobbling on his feet before many minutes had passed, and pounced on his foe for the pin after 13 minutes.

The wrestlers, anxious to gain the deciding fall, tore at one another with a vengeance following the second intermission. Neither seemed to be able to apply their pet holds with effectiveness, but both dealt out considerable abuse with their forearms and knees. The timekeeper's bell put an end to the melee and Referee John Seaman raised both of their hands to designate a draw.

In the semi-windup, Bill Sledge, popular Texan, returned to the local rink and wasted no time in disposing of George Herben, of Georgia, with a body press after eight minutes. Mike Strelch flattened Harry Finklestein with a body press to win the second bout after 13 minutes. The opener was won by Jim Coffield when he pinned John Swenski after 18 minutes.

EXPECT CINCINNATI TO MAKE BATTLE FOR FLAG

TAMPA, Fla., Apr. 1.—(INS)—The Cincinnati Reds, who haven't been in the first division since their second place finish in 1926, hereby are picked by Manager Charlie Dressen to make a battle for a place among the leaders in the coming National League race.

In the cellar four straight years from 1931 through 1934, the Reds began their comeback in 1935 by moving up into sixth place and progressed to fifth last season. Dressen believes the forward surge will leave his hustling team at least a notch higher when the end is reached next fall—barring an epidemic of tough luck meanwhile.

Observers foresee the same possibility, agreeing that of the second division clubs, the Reds are standouts in nearly every respect and look like a team being built to go places.

"We figure to have a more powerful batting attack next season, far better pitching, a pair of the best catchers in baseball and the same hustle of the rate to continue, some people with last few seasons." Dressen said today in summing up improvements since the finish of last year's race.

"There will be more punch in our infield, I'm sure, and as for the outfield—it should be positively O. K. if Kiki Cuyler has as good a season as he had in 1936. The only thing I can't plan against is the breaks. With any kind of luck we ought to do all right."

The pitching staff again will be headed by big, able and right-handed Paul Derringer, who won 19 games last season, with Ray Davis, Benny Frey, Gene Schott, Bill Hallahan and Al Hollingsworth among the hold-overs.

Included among the newcomers in southpaw John Vander Meer, husky 23-year-old strikeout king of the minor leagues, who fanned 295 batters while winning 19 games in the Piedmont circuit last season.

"George Bernard Shaw says it is the most revolutionary idea of this century. Birth control is here to stay and you just might as well try to push back the tides of the seas as to stop birth control."

"It is a great satisfaction to see so many women turn out to a meeting like this. I look upon birth control as the keynote of a new social and moral awakening. Having the historic privilege of starting the movement, I can best describe birth control as the conscious control of the birth rate."

"We control traffic, control our automobiles, our appetites, many of our habits, why not control the birth rate. It means nothing more than intelligence applied to power."

"When children are consciously conceived, they will be the type that are not only wanted but are worthwhile. Children of that group in my estimation will constitute an entirely new race."

"There always has been some control of the birth rate but the new methods are more civilized and are working out with our general plan."

Mrs. Sanger told the women that she has heard of no woman's club so far, anywhere in America, that has gone to the public officials of the state and counties, demanding that they check up on the inmates of our asylums, institutions for feeble-minded and demand that something be done to prevent them leaving on parole without first being sterilized or furnishing proof that they will no longer continue to bring children into the world.

"In one instance a survey show that 98 percent of the persons paroled from such institutions returned within two years, leaving back home another child," Mrs. Sanger declared.

"Not all mental defectives and morons are in our institutions, for it is possible for a moron to vote, just the same as a college professor, and that is something to think about, ladies."

"Another survey made by a Princeton authority showed that the mortality rate of 80 percent of a large group examined was less than that of a juvenile of 15 years."

"If we allow this differential birth pitching, a pair of the best catchers in baseball and the same hustle of the rate to continue, some people with small families and others with very large families, we will have to look into the kind of people that are being born."

"Mothers who space their babies are those who live in a family that pay their doctor bills, their dentist bills and other obligations. This is the type family that can properly raise three or four babies. I refuse to criticize this group for it is this group that has to pay the taxes and the bills for the other group that believe in very large families but cannot pay. It is the latter group that must be controlled."

"There is no getting away from it, birth control will make for a better civilization. We have to put a stop to emotionalism and sentimentalism and use intelligence for a change; we have to get down to the source, the real cause. You cannot cure a cancer by burning off the top, as the old quacks used to say."

"I have no fault to find with philanthropy and charity, but the trouble is they do not go back far enough! Why not prevent children being born into poverty, born into disease and filth and prevent the population of our asylums and other institutions from becoming overcrowded. Social workers know exactly what is going on but the trouble has been that most of them have not lifted their voices in disapproval."

"I have often said that I would like to live long enough to see the day when children could pick their parents. I'd like to see the children ask the parents a few questions, I can hear the children asking the father for his health certificate or asking the mother how many children she has had. I can hear the father in some instances answering that he has not had work for two years and is on relief and I can hear the child say, 'well, I guess I'll pass along to another candidate.'"

"It is time for the United States government to issue 'passports' for babies as well as adults going into a strange country; it is just as important, my ladies."

Mrs. Sanger returned recently from a trip through the West and South. She spoke particularly of child labor.

"Child labor will never be stopped until it is made impossible for some parents to have no more children," she declared. "I visited homes in Arizona just recently where there are eight and ten children in a family, all of them working in order to bring in enough money to provide the family budget. They have to work to keep alive. The same is true in the south and elsewhere. There is no use to be sorry for the children, but we certainly can do something about it. We are not going to legislate child labor out of existence, don't forget that! Parents that cannot control such a thing should be and must be sterilized."

Mrs. Sanger gave seven reasons why birth control should be nation-wide. She mentioned them as follows:

First: Because of parents who have a transmissible disease, because of men and women who have a similar disease, such as syphilis or because of insanity. This is the type, she said, that have no moral standard of child life, and they must be sterilized, she declared. Sterilization in no way hurts the condition of health, she said.

Second: Because of the type of a woman or man who has a disease that is not transmissible, but should postpone pregnancy until the affliction is cured.

Third: In the case of parents who look healthy but where the children have some defect. Suggest that parents of this type adopt children instead.

Fourth: Birth control should be practiced because of the necessity of properly spacing children. There should be at least two years' rest for the mother or three years between the birth of children. Children spaced carefully, she said, have a better chance to live longer.

Fifth: For economic reasons. People that can afford to have two children should not have ten. A recent survey showed that 55 per cent of the increase in the birth rate came from parents on relief. The older children in the large families usually suffer because there is not enough money to give them a proper education; they must work to help raise the smaller children.

Six: Adolescence. Mrs. Sanger said she believed in early marriages, but that marriage should be postponed until at least the stage of adolescent development has passed. Certainly parents should urge children to postpone parenthood until properly developed, even though they may not prevent marriage.

Seven: Mrs. Sanger said that she believed that everyone should take a period after marriage to get acquainted, although she said that many people disagreed with her. She said that it was her opinion that two years time should be taken to actually learn to know your husband and your wife. It is unfair to both men and women to return from the honeymoon and immediately settle down to hard housework and raise a family. Where two years' time has been taken to get acquainted, marriages have been happier, the home is better organized, fear of pregnancy has gone and the children are usually finer and happier," she said.

"How can all this be done," Mrs. Sanger said. "It can be done by continence or celibacy (unmarried or one bound by religious vows of chastity). In our work through the world we advocate that continence and celibacy is not the proper method, for those who believe in celibacy have no right to impose that condition on those who do not agree."

"Next is sterilization, and this is the very best method of birth control. It is the only sure way, the only right way and the way that will soon be accepted and recognized for we are progressing rapidly in that direction every day."

"Advice on proper contraception is needed. Birth control means the helping of women to have children properly and not to prevent them from having children. Birth control at last is legal and can be given by physicians and by hospitals and advice at clinics, and it is up to you as women of Montgomery and Bucks county to let this be known. It is time for all of us to pull together; we have been working in small groups behind closed doors so to speak, but birth control is now out in the open."

"Demand from your officials in Pennsylvania that no inmate be released from a criminal insane and feeble-minded institutions and from certain jails on certain charges unless he or she has been sterilized or can show some good proof that no more children will be born."

"It is time the United States government is also helping the mothers of America. You can write to them about chickens, cows, hogs and whatnot and get all the assistance and literature that you want; enough to keep you busy reading for a year, but write to them for advice about birth control and see what you get. This condition, I am glad to say will soon change."

"As women leaders you have a spiritual responsibility to perform. Cut your annual charity bequests in half and give the other half to the birth control movement and you will be doing something worthwhile."

A very fine volunteer offering was taken, the proceeds going to the Doylestown Birth Control Clinic work.
